BOCOUTURE® (botulinum toxin type A (150 kD), free from complexing proteins) 50 / 100 unit vials.
Prescribing information: Please refer to the Summary of Product Characteristics (SmPC) before prescribing.
Presentation: 50 / 100 units of Clostridium Botulinum Neurotoxin type A, free from complexing proteins as a powder for solution for injection.
Indications: Temporary improvement in the appearance of moderate to severe upper facial lines (glabellar frown lines, crow's feet lines, horizontal forehead lines) in adults ≥18 and <65 years when the severity of these lines has an important psychological impact for the patient.
Dosage and administration: For intramuscular use only. Unit doses recommended for BOCOUTURE are not interchangeable with those for other preparations of botulinum toxin. BOCOUTURE should only be administered by an appropriately qualified healthcare practitioner with expertise in the treatment of the relevant indication and the use of the required equipment, in accordance with national guidelines. The intervals between treatments should not be shorter than 3 months. Reconstitute with 0.9% sodium chloride.
Glabellar Frown Lines: Total recommended standard dose is 20 units. 4 units into 5 injection sites (2 injections in each corrugator muscle and 1 injection in the procerus muscle). May be increased up to 30 units. Injections near the levator palpebrae superioris and into the cranial portion of the orbicularis oculi should be avoided.
Crow's Feet lines: Total recommended standard dosing is 12 units per side (overall total dose: 24 units); 4 units injected bilaterally into each of the 3 injection sites. Injections too close to the Zygomaticus major muscle should be avoided to prevent lip ptosis.
Horizontal Forehead Lines: The recommended total dose range is 10 to 20 units; a total injection volume of 10 units to 20 units is injected into the frontalis muscle in five horizontally aligned injection sites at least 2 cm above the orbital rim. An injection volume of 2 units, 3 units or 4 units is applied per injection point, respectively.
Contraindications: Hypersensitivity to the active substance or to any of the excipients. Generalised disorders of muscle activity (e.g. myasthenia gravis, Lambert-Eaton syndrome). Infection or inflammation at the proposed injection site.
Special warnings and precautions: Horizontal forehead lines may not only be dynamic, but may also result from the loss of dermal elasticity (e.g. associated with ageing or photo damage). In this case, patients may not respond to botulinum toxin products. Cases of iatrogenic botulism have been reported following injection of botulinum toxin products. Advise patients to seek immediate medical care if they experience any signs or symptoms consistent with the spread of botulinum toxin effect or if swallowing, speech or respiratory disorders occur. Should not be injected into a blood vessel. Not recommended for patients with a history of dysphagia and aspiration. Caution in patients with botulinum toxin hypersensitivity, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, peripheral neuromuscular dysfunction, or in targeted muscles displaying pronounced weakness or atrophy. BOCOUTURE should be used with caution in patients receiving anticoagulant therapy or other substances that could have an anticoagulant effect, or if bleeding disorders of any type exist. Too frequent or too high dosing of botulinum toxin type A may increase the risk of antibodies forming.
Pregnancy: Should not be used during pregnancy or during breastfeeding.
Interactions: Concomitant use with aminoglycosides or spectinomycin requires special care. Peripheral muscle relaxants should be used with caution. 4-aminoquinolines may reduce the effect.
Undesirable effects: Usually, undesirable effects are observed within the first week after treatment and are temporary in nature. Undesirable effects independent of indication include; application related undesirable effects (localised pain, inflammation, swelling), class related undesirable effects (localised muscle weakness, blepharoptosis), and toxin spread (very rare – exaggerated muscle weakness, dysphagia, aspiration pneumonia). Hypersensitivity reactions have been reported with botulinum toxin products.
Glabellar Frown Lines: Common: headache, Mephisto sign.
Crow's Feet Lines: Common: eyelid oedema, dry eye, injection site haematoma.
Upper Facial Lines: Common: headache, injection site haematoma. Uncommon: hypoaesthesia, discomfort (heavy feeling of frontal area), eyelid swelling, eyelid ptosis, dry eye, brow ptosis, facial asymmetry, Mephisto sign, nausea. For a full list of adverse reactions, please consult the SmPC.

Botulinum toxin units are not interchangeable from one product to another. Doses recommended are different from other botulinum toxin preparations. Treatment interval should not be more frequent than every three months. In the absence of any undesirable effects secondary to the previous treatment session, a further treatment session with at least a three-month interval between the treatment sessions is possible. The efficacy and safety of repeat injections beyond 12 months has not been evaluated.

Special populations

No specific dose adjustment is required for use in the elderly older than 65 years of age. Letybo is contraindicated in patients 75 years or older. There is no relevant use in the paediatric population.

Method of administration:

Intramuscular use. Care should be taken to ensure that Letybo is not injected into a blood vessel.

Contraindications:

Hypersensitivity to the active substance or to any of the excipients. Generalised disorders of muscle activity (e.g. myasthenia gravis, Lambert-Eaton syndrome, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis). Presence of acute infection or inflammation at the proposed injection sites. Patients with bleeding disorders.

Warnings and Precautions:

Injection into vulnerable anatomic structures must be avoided. Avoid use when the muscle shows excessive weakness or atrophy. Risk of eyelid ptosis following treatment.

Procedure-related events: Needle-related pain and/or anxiety have resulted in vasovagal responses, including transient symptomatic hypotension and syncope after treatment with other botulinum toxins.

Pre-existing neuromuscular disorders: Patients with unrecognised neuromuscular disorders may be at increased risk of clinically significant systemic effects including severe dysphagia and respiratory compromise from typical doses of botulinum toxin type A.

Hypersensitivity reactions: An anaphylactic reaction may occur after injection of botulinum toxin. Epinephrine (adrenaline) or any other anti-anaphylactic measures should therefore be available.

Local or distant spread of toxin effects: Adverse reactions possibly related to the spread of toxin distant from the site of administration have been reported. Patients may experience exaggerated muscle weakness.

Swallowing and breathing difficulties are serious and can result in death. Use not recommended in patients with a history of dysphagia and aspiration. Patients should be advised to seek immediate medical care if swallowing, speech or respiratory disorders arise.

Pregnancy & Lactation: Not recommended during pregnancy or lactation and in women of childbearing potential not using contraception.

Undesirable effects:

Most common effects are headache and injection site reaction. Very rarely aspirational pneumonia. For full list of side effects, consult SmPC.
